

WindEnergy Hamburg 2022: Exhibitor Quotes

Nils de Baar, President of Vestas Northern & Central Europe

“Time to wrap up a very successful WindEnergy Hamburg and a great week for our industry! It was great to see so many clients, employees, and friends back in Hamburg enabling stimulating discussions and fruitful meetings. But there's more to it: Many encouraging speeches were delivered and presentations held, showing that the momentum for wind energy is more present than ever. What we now need to see are falling barriers to allow more permits to go through. This will translate to more projects and help to accelerate the urgently needed energy transition.”

Dr Jochen Eickholt, CEO, Siemens Gamesa Renewable Energy S.A.

“WindEnergy Hamburg underlines the immense economic and societal importance of wind energy, from manufacturers and operators through to the numerous suppliers we depend on as partners in tackling the energy transition. At the same time, this event is a great opportunity to highlight what governments need to do to enable the wind industry to ensure a reliable energy supply for Europe and accomplish the energy transition before it is too late. For the energy transition to succeed in Europe, and for Europe to defend its global leadership position in wind energy successfully, it is essential to acknowledge the strategic importance of the wind industry, and governments, manufacturers and suppliers must work hand in hand.”

Dr. Jürgen Zeschky, CEO ENERCON GmbH

“For ENERCON, WindEnergy Hamburg is one of the most important international events in the wind industry. Onshore wind power is needed today more than ever – we would like to undertake a joint contribution to a reliable, crisis-proof, sustainable and affordable energy supply. Here in Hamburg we see clear and evidently: The industry is ready and presents many innovations that support these goals“.

Peter Küpper, Vice President Sales & Marketing at thyssenkrupp rothe erde

“Our participation in WindEnergy Hamburg 2022 fulfilled all our expectations! It was nice to be able to meet our customers and partners again. We saw that nothing can replace face-to-face interaction. WindEnergy Hamburg remains the global meeting place for the industry – you can't put more wind into a single event!”

Ibrahim Oezarslan, CEO Division Europe, Nordex Group

“WindEnergy Hamburg 2022 exceeded our expectations – both in terms of the quality of the conversations held and in terms of the number of visitors. In addition to the personal meetings with many of our customers at the world's largest wind energy exhibition, we have noticed an enormous interest in our new turbine for low-wind locations – the N175/6.X with 175-meter rotor and a capacity of over 6 MW – presented to the public for the first time. WindEnergy Hamburg once again offered the ideal platform for mutual exchange, the establishment and expansion of personal contacts and for us as manufacturer the opportunity to prove once again that today's proven technology is available to quickly achieve independence from fossil fuels and to counter climate change."

Gabriel Schwanzer, CMO/Director Business Unit Wind, Bachmann electronic GmbH

"As a leading provider of automation solutions for wind energy, we have noticed an increased interest in new technologies. WindEnergy Hamburg 2022 is the ideal platform for us to engage in deeper conversations and establish new business contacts."

Søren Rasmussen, Managing Director Danish Wind Export

„Windenergy Hamburg is where you meet the global supply chain and we at Pavilion og Danmark and our exhibitors enjoy to be a part of the event!"

Dr Frank May, CEO, Alterric GmbH

"In these demanding and dynamic times it is more important than ever to drive the energy transition with determination and speed. WindEnergy Hamburg provides an ideal environment to exchange views and ideas and expand business networks. Together we will succeed in building a sustainable energy system for the future – we are ready to take action."
